

February 26, 2009

Dear Eye Care Professional,

We are pleased to announce that Abbott has completed its acquisition of Advanced Medical Optics. We now begin a new chapter in our company's history as Abbott Medical Optics – a subsidiary of Abbott.

Abbott brings to AMO the strength, reach and resources of one of the leading healthcare companies in the world. Although our name and ownership have changed, under Abbott we remain as focused as ever on developing innovative new products and meeting your needs and the needs of the patients you serve.

With this strategic union, we will continue to provide our full range of refractive, cataract and corneal products while exploring new innovations that advance the science of vision care.

Most importantly, you will experience virtually no change in our relationship as a result of this transaction. You will continue to work with the same sales representative and customer service team, who will continue to answer your questions and provide the support you need. And our ordering, pricing, payments and accounts receivable processes will remain the same at this time, as well.

As always, we'll be sure to update you should any changes arise.

Thank you for your continued support and commitment to AMO.

Best regards,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'Jim Mazzo', written in a cursive style.

Jim Mazzo
President
Abbott Medical Optics